The Judicial Council interviewed Judge Froehlich and conducted a supplemental review of his performance. The Council was concerned by Judge Froehlich's below acceptable rating (2.9) by attorneys who had substantial experience with him (a sub-category of the ratings included above); and by complaints about his judicial temperament and overuse of arrest warrants and contempt sanctions. The Council concluded that Judge Froehlich's overall judicial performance was acceptable, and that Judge Froehlich sincerely cared about the people who appeared before him. The Council did urge the judge to concentrate on improving specific areas of his judicial performance.
