Position(s) for which you wish to be considered:

Anchorage Superior Court Judge

Date: September 14, 2011

After growing up in California, I attended Claremont McKenna College, and then Yale Law School, where I combined my legal studies with a commitment to public service. I have been focussed since the beginning of my legal career on helping people to better understand the law and the legal system, and on finding ways to assist others through the legal system.

After law school, I came to Alaska to clerk for Justice Warren Matthews. I quickly fell in love with the state. After leaving for a one-year clerkship with the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, I returned and have since married my husband and continued to practice law here. I have been fortunate both to serve the people of this state through work in the public sector, and to provide guidance and assistance to my clients in civil practice at Farley & Graves, P.C.
