Name Jeffrey Friedman

Position(s) for which you wish to be considered:

Alaska Supreme Court

Date: January 26, 2012

I graduated from the University of Maryland School of Law in 1984. I passed the Virginia Bar exam, but worked in a non-legal position for a few years. I moved to Anchorage in 1987 and was admitted to the bar in June of 1988. My practice focused primarily on civil litigation for plaintiffs, with some criminal defense work. Beginning in 2007, my focused shifted towards providing legal advice and representation to a corporate client in contract, environmental, and employment matters, as well as handling the client's small claims collections. In December of 2009, I was hired by the state as an Administrative Law Judge, where I handle a wide variety of state agency appeals and hearings. In addition to my legal career, I have served on the Anchorage School Board since 2003. My wife and I live in Anchorage and have four children.
