Name Marc Wilhelm

Position(s) for which you wish to be considered:

Alaska Supreme Court

Date: 1/30/2012

I was born and raised in Seattle, Washington, together with my brother. After graduating from Stanford University, I took a job in Washington, D.C. I missed the mountains, however, and after three years returned to Seattle to attend law school. Law had always been an interest because of a close friendship with a neighbor, a retired lawyer.

I moved to Alaska to take a clerkship with Judge von der Heydt. I next worked three years at Middleton, Timme, & McKay, primarily representing Native corporations and organizations. I joined Richmond & Quinn in 1989 to practice law with my friend, Dan Quinn. My practice has taken me to all corners of the state, from Ketchikan and Juneau, to Bethel, Barrow, and Nome, and allowed me to make good friends, and has given me a good understanding of the state.

I have been married for 19 years and have one daughter.
